A Royal ESCAPE

In the colourful heart of Bangkok, beyond the bustling streets and ornate temples, is an enduring piece of the city's royal history just waiting to be discovered

Once the residence of HRH Prince Chakrabongse, of the Chakri dynasty of Thailand, the luxurious Chakrabongse Villas have retained all of their regal, understated charm. An intimate collection of four beautiful villas are on offer — including the Riverside Villa, with its beautiful teak features and spacious verandah, and the Thai House, a traditionally inspired bolthole built on stilts overlooking the sculpture pool — all providing the ultimate escape for a stay in Thailand's captivating capital.

This former royal retreat, which was originally used by HRH when attending ceremonies at the Grand Palace or taking excursions on the river, has been completely reimagined for the modern traveller to write their own story. Guests can even unwind on the river themselves with the villas' private boat, or tuck into delicious local cuisine for an authentic Thai experience. Set amidst beautiful, lush gardens, the villas are just a stone's throw from Bangkok's prime attractions — hinted at with the stunning views of the Chao Phraya River and the glistening towers of Wat Arun (the Temple of Dawn).
